What is a flood?

Flooding is the unusual presence of water on land to normal activities. Flooding can arise from:

- Overflowing rivers (river flooding),
- Heavy rainfall over a short duration (flash floods)
- An unusual inflow of sea water onto land (ocean can be caused by storms such as hurricanes (st tidal flooding), seismic events (tsunami) or large also called tsunami).

River and flash flooding usually result from abnormal relatively short period: Hours for flash floods; Days for melt can bring more water into the hydrological system adequately drained, leading to what is generally called rainfall during the a tropical rainy season can lead to can affect rivers and may also occur as flash flooding

Sedimentation of river beds and deforestation of wet exacerbate conditions leading to river valley floods. Over land can significantly increase the risk of flash floods in environmentally degraded areas, or chain systems, can significantly increase the risk of flood

How to prevent floods?

The best approach to prevent flooding from becoming structural as well as structural measures. Risk assessment

HFA IMPLEMENTATION IN THE PHILIPPINES

The National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) is the highest policy-making and coordinating body for disaster risk management in the Philippines. It advises the President on matters related to natural calamities and disasters, including recommendations for the declaration of a state of calamity in disaster-affected areas. The Secretary of National Defense serves as the Chairman of the NDCC and the Council is composed of fourteen (14) Department Secretaries, the Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP), the Secretary-General of the Philippine National Red Cross (PNRC), and the Administrator of Office of Civil Defense (OCD) as member and Executive Officer.

A line bureau under the Department of National Defense (DND), OCD has been the focal agency in the country on disaster management. It had initiated the crafting of a Comprehensive Disaster Management Framework with four (4) main elements, namely; Mitigation, Preparedness, Response and Rehabilitation for which several programs and activities are being implemented not only by OCD but also by the member-agencies of the NDCC. The Council has a Calamities and Disaster Preparedness Plan which spells out the functions of each member agency in times of disasters.

The OCD represented the Philippines in the January 2005 – World

Welcome to the Gender and Disaster Network [new site under development]

The Gender and Disaster Network is an educational project initiated by women and men interested in gender relations in disaster contexts. It emerged from an early morning meeting during the July 1997 Natural Hazards Research and Applications Center workshop in Denver, Colorado.

We aim to utilize the Internet in the support of a global network of researchers and practitioners. Please go to the Who Are We? Pages for further information. More...
